This consultation document invites public comments on the draft Securities and Futures (Stock Market Listing) Rules (the “draft Rules”) which the Securities and Futures Commission (“SFC”) proposes to make under section 36(1) of the Securities and Futures Ordinance (5 of 2002) (the “Ordinance”) when it commences and on the draft Securities and Futures (Transfer of Functions – Stock Exchange Company) Order (the “draft Order”) which the Chief Executive in Council may promulgate under section 25(1) of the Ordinance.

ii. Subsidiary legislative rules and orders must be subject to negative vetting by the Legislative Council. In addition, for rules that the SFC proposes to make, section 398 of the Ordinance stipulates a mandatory consultation requirement. The SFC now releases the draft Rules and the draft Order, attached as Annex 1 to this document, for public consultation.

Introduction

1. The Hong Kong securities market stakes its credibility on transparency and the integrity of information issued to the investing public. Our regulatory regime is disclosure-based and investor protection is furthered through providing the public with reliable information and enabling investors to make well-informed decisions for themselves. This is the approach adopted internationally in all major jurisdictions.
2. Key to this is information disclosure by companies with public shareholders or which are seeking to raise funds from the public. In reaching public investors, these companies take on an obligation to provide timely, accurate, and full disclosure of material information. Failure to do so is a violation of the public trust and should be met with appropriate enforcement action.
3. An effective disclosure regulatory regime benefits the investing public as well as other market and industry participants. The credibility of a market as being fair and transparent, with proper safeguards on the integrity of information disclosure, translates into a lower cost of funds to issuers of securities, attracts more local and international investors, thus providing further opportunities for intermediaries and professionals.
4. Our enforcement regime for corporate information disclosure has been mostly based on the non-statutory Listing Rules of the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong and on the contractual obligation that a listed company owes to the Exchange under a Listing Agreement. As the Hong Kong market continues to develop and gain in diversity and complexity, there have been increasing suggestions for some degree of statutory support. International regulatory practice also points in this direction.
5. In particular, there is a consensus that effective enforcement is paramount to credible disclosure regulation and the regulatory regime must be backed with:
 - Effective investigatory powers to be available for use in cases of suspected dissemination of false or misleading information to the public; and
 - Effective sanctions – the most serious of which, criminal liability, would be used rarely but its applicability in the most egregious cases would have an overall positive effect.
6. Different jurisdictions provide for this in different ways and the international models continue to evolve. The SFC has carefully reviewed Hong Kong market practice and our legislative framework and now proposes certain minimum changes to the present Securities (Stock Exchange Listing) Rules (to be re-enacted as the Securities and Futures (Stock Market Listing) Rules).
7. Under the draft Rules, companies that disseminate information to public investors pursuant to applicable rules or laws will have to file a copy of the disclosure materials with the SFC. Accordingly, under existing statutory laws concerning the provision of false or misleading information, re-enacted in section 384 of the new Ordinance, any person that intentionally or recklessly provides false or misleading information when making the disclosure (in other words, any company that lies to the public) would be subject to the statutory powers of the SFC. The SFC will be able to employ its existing investigatory powers in establishing the facts and gathering evidence. In appropriate cases, the SFC may bring (or refer to the Department of Justice to bring) the offenders to prosecution in the courts.

8. Prospectuses and other listing documents constitute the single most important category of corporate information disclosure to the public. Disclosure in these materials forms a key element of the relationship between a company and its public shareholders. Accordingly, the draft Rules also require companies seeking to list their securities for trading in the Hong Kong public market to submit their application materials as a statutory filing to the SFC.
9. There would be no additional costs to the companies or the market. The draft Rules provide that a company may save the administrative step of filing with the SFC by authorizing the Exchange to file the materials on its behalf. The Exchange will continue to discharge its prospectus-vetting and authorization function.
10. The net effect of the draft Rules is to bring the Hong Kong regulatory regime more in line with international practice in providing for a statutory regulator of corporate information disclosure to the public. This is important for effective enforcement and the credibility of our disclosure-based regulation.

The Draft Rules

11. Most of the provisions in the draft Rules are copied from existing laws. These include clauses 1– 4, 7– 10, and 12– 14, which are in the present Securities (Stock Exchange Listing) Rules, and clauses 11 and 15, which are taken from the existing Securities (Stock Exchange Listing) (Approved Share Registrar) Rules. These provisions have been operating smoothly and the market is well accustomed to their application in practice. Any changes reflected in the draft Rules are only technical in nature and are intended to make the language more user-friendly.
12. Clauses 5 and 6 relate to the policies mentioned above on the regulation of corporate information disclosure to the public. Specifically, clause 6 requires companies whose securities are listed on the Stock Exchange to dual-file their public disclosure materials with the SFC. This will not change the disclosure content requirements, most of which are set out in the Stock Exchange Listing Rules and will continue to be administered by the Exchange. It will, however, attach statutory liability under section 384 of the Ordinance to any person who intentionally or recklessly makes false or misleading information disclosure.
13. Corporate information disclosure to the public is also made pursuant to the SFC Codes on Takeovers and Mergers and Share Repurchases. Identical disclosure is usually required by the Stock Exchange Listing Rules, but not in all cases. To address this, Clause 6 also specifically refers to disclosure made pursuant to these Codes.

14. Since the disclosure materials will be statutory filings with the SFC, the SFC will be able to invoke its powers under section 182 of the Ordinance to conduct the necessary investigations into cases of suspected false or misleading information disclosure to the public. If there is sufficient evidence and prosecution is appropriate, the SFC may refer the case to the Department of Justice or, under section 388, itself prosecute the matter before a magistrate.
15. In the event that an investigation uncovers suspected wrongdoing in areas other than false or misleading disclosure, the SFC may refer the matter to another regulatory body or, if the matter fall within the jurisdiction of the SFC, itself take appropriate further action. (Examples include corporate fraud, which may be a matter for the Police Commercial Crime Bureau, or market manipulation and misconduct by intermediaries, both of which are matters for SFC enforcement.)
16. Where the false or misleading disclosure has a proven market manipulation element, it might be possible to bring a civil action in front of the new Market Misconduct Tribunal or criminal prosecution in the courts. (Sections 277 and 298 of the Ordinance requires proof of the false or misleading information being likely to induce a subscription, sale or purchase in securities or likely to maintain, increase, reduce, or stabilize the price of securities.) In addition, following an investigation, the SFC may pass the evidence it has gathered to the Stock Exchange for them to consider potential disciplinary action under the Listing Rules.
17. Prospectuses and other listing documents constitute the single most important category of disclosure materials. Clause 5 recognizes this and requires companies seeking to access the public market to file a copy of its listing application made to the Stock Exchange with the SFC. In line with the international model practiced in all major jurisdictions, the SFC will be able to comment on the draft disclosure materials (principally the prospectus) and object to the company accessing the public market on the basis of insufficient or inadequate disclosure.
18. Under sections 40A and 342F of the Companies Ordinance, any person who authorizes a prospectus containing any untrue statements commits an offence, unless he proves that the untrue statement was immaterial or he had reasonable grounds for believing the statement to be true. Under the new Ordinance, the SFC may invoke its section 182 investigatory power for such suspected false or misleading disclosure in prospectuses. If appropriate, the SFC may bring (or refer to the Department of Justice to bring) prosecutorial action.

Saving Market Costs and Administrative Burden

19. The SFC recognizes that cost is an important consideration for market users. To avoid unnecessary administrative burden, the draft Rules allow a company or other person to file the required disclosure materials only with the Stock Exchange, provided that the person has authorized the Exchange to make the statutory filing to the SFC on its behalf. There will be no additional filing or compliance costs. By taking this route, the company or other person will also avoid inadvertently forgetting to file its disclosure materials with the SFC.

20. In addition, the public disclosure materials a company files under clause 6 will not be subject to any SFC pre-vetting. There will be no additional steps in the administrative process or any time delay in disseminating the information.
21. In respect of prospectuses and other initial-listing disclosure materials, the Stock Exchange will remain the frontline regulator in vetting and authorizing the documents. Listing applicants will continue to make their applications to the Stock Exchange, which, with the authorization of the applicants, will make the appropriate filings with the SFC. The power of the SFC under clause 5 will be a reserve power only. The SFC will enter into a new Memorandum of Understanding with the Exchange on the administrative arrangements and how the SFC will continue to rely on the frontline regulation by the Exchange.

The Draft Order

22. In order that the Stock Exchange can continue to act as the frontline regulator of listed companies and listing applications, the present transfer (from the SFC to the Exchange) of prospectus-vetting and authorization function will remain. Accordingly, the draft Order is substantially identical to the present Securities (Transfer of Functions) Order.
23. The Ordinance uses a new defined concept of “collective investment schemes” to include mutual funds and other pooled investment vehicles. The general intention is that these products should be subject to authorization by the SFC if marketed to the public. The present Transfer of Functions Order carves out mutual funds; the power to authorize prospectuses for these products has not been transferred from the SFC to the Stock Exchange. Similarly, the new draft Order will carve out collective investment schemes that should be subject to SFC authorization.

International Comparison

24. The net effect of the draft Rules and the draft Order is to bring the Hong Kong regulatory regime more in line with international practice in providing for a statutory regulator of corporate information disclosure to the public. All major jurisdictions provide for statutory investigation and enforcement against false or misleading disclosure. Given the widely accepted disclosure-based approach, the use of statutory powers is key to effective regulation and public credibility.
25. The US Securities and Exchange Commission, the UK Financial Services Authority, and the Australian Securities and Investments Commission are empowered by legislation to conduct statutory investigations into public disclosure abuses. The laws in these jurisdictions also make violations of the relevant disclosure requirements criminal offences. The effect of the proposed draft Rules will be in line with this international practice.

26. The SEC and FSA are also able to seek fines and other civil penalties for violation of disclosure requirements in administrative proceedings, and ASIC has recently been empowered to apply for civil sanctions in the courts. The SFC does not propose to introduce this option at present but will keep the possibility under review as investigatory experience accumulates.

Checks and Balances

27. The draft Rules do not introduce any new enforcement powers for the SFC and only enable the SFC to invoke its existing investigatory and prosecutorial powers in cases of suspected false or misleading corporate information disclosure. Checks and balances currently in place or to be established under the Ordinance will automatically apply. These include built-in safeguards (required proof of mens rea and other elements as clearly set out in relevant sections of the Ordinance) and various internal control mechanisms (as already explained in detail in previous public consultation documents). There are also a number of external mechanisms of checks and balances, including judicial review by the courts, the Process Review Panel, the Ombudsman, and the Independent Commission Against Corruption.
28. The power of the SFC under clause 5 will be a reserve power. Nevertheless, it will be subject to the same mechanisms of checks and balances as are generally applicable to the work of the SFC. In addition, we propose that, where the SFC exercises its reserve power, the decision will be subject to the full-merit review of the new Securities and Futures Appeals Tribunal.

No Merit Regulation of Business Activities

29. The draft Rules enable the SFC to perform more effectively its role in regulation of corporate information disclosure. The SFC will not be regulating corporate activities or transactions. For example, the SFC will not attempt to determine what transactions are permissible between a listed company and its connected parties, nor whether a rights issue is at an appropriate price. Under our disclosure-based regulation, such commercial decisions are left to the company's management, board of directors, and shareholders (with relevant voting and other procedures as set out in the Stock Exchange Listing Rules). The merit of a transaction is not a matter for regulators to determine. Our object is to ensure that public investors receive timely, accurate, and full information disclosure in order to make the best judgment of the events for themselves.

Other Matters

30. Investigation of disclosure abuse is an inherently difficult task. The complex nature of corporate and financial activities makes building a case a painstaking exercise. Furthermore, most companies listed in Hong Kong have substantial operations outside of the territory; important evidence and witnesses might be unavailable. That the SFC will have to gather sufficient evidence to establish a case to the criminal standard of proof, i.e., beyond all reasonable doubt, will also raise very high the bar for successful enforcement.
31. Nevertheless, the SFC is committed to employing all the tools available to it to pursue persons who provide false or misleading information (i.e., lie) to the public and the market. The SFC will re-deploy internal resources and recruit for further market expertise where necessary to carry out this disclosure regulatory function. In cases involving cross-jurisdiction issues, we will also need to seek the co-operation of fellow regulators overseas under formal memoranda of understanding or informal arrangements.

Public Consultation

32. Strengthening our enforcement of disclosure regulation in Hong Kong is an important part of the overall effort to enhance the transparency, credibility, and competitiveness of our securities market. The proposals in the draft Rules and draft Order will bring Hong Kong further in line with the international model of having a disclosure regulator able to employ the necessary tools to promote the quality of corporate information disclosure.
33. The SFC would welcome views and comments from the public on the above proposals, the draft Rules and the draft Order, and any related matters.

- (b) considered any –
 - (i) representations by the issuer under subsection (1);

- (iii) further representations by the issuer or the recognized exchange company, the Commission by notice to the recognized exchange company concerned may –

- (c) permit dealings in the securities to recommence subject to such conditions as the Commission may think fit to impose, being conditions of the nature specified in subsection (4); or
- (d) direct the recognized exchange company to cancel the listing of the securities on its recognized stock market if the Commission –

 - (ii) considers that such action is necessary to maintain an orderly market in Hong Kong, and the recognized exchange company must comply with that direction without delay.

(4) The conditions which may be imposed under subsection (3)(c) are –

- (a) where the Commission has exercised its powers under section 7(1)(a) or (d), conditions imposed with the object of ensuring, so far as is reasonably practicable, that the issuer remedies the default by reason of which the suspension of dealings was directed, provided that the Commission must permit such dealings unconditionally without delay if it is of the view that there has been no such default;

- (b) where the Commission has exercised its powers under section 7 (1)(b), such conditions as the Commission may consider necessary or expedient in the interests of maintaining an orderly and fair market in securities traded through the facilities of a recognized exchange company on its recognized stock market;
- (c) where the Commission has exercised its powers under section 7(1)(c), such conditions as the Commission may consider to be in the interest of the investing public or in the public interest, or to be appropriate for the protection of investors generally or for the protection of investors in specified securities listed on a recognized stock market.

(5) In subsection (3) "further representations" means representations either in writing or orally or both in writing and orally as the issuer or the recognized exchange company concerned may determine which are submitted within such reasonable time as the Commission may determine.

(6) The functions of the Commission under this section may only be exercised by a meeting of the Commission and are not delegable.

(7) A director of the Commission who made the decision in the exercise of the Commission's powers under section 7 may not participate in the deliberations or voting of the Commission in the performance of its functions under this section as regards that exercise of the Commission's powers.

10. Restriction on re-listing

No security the listing of which has been cancelled under section 8 may be listed again on a recognized stock market except in accordance with Part II.

11. Waiver of requirements of Parts II and III

The Commission may by notice to an applicant or an issuer, as the case may be, and a recognized exchange company, modify or waive, subject to such reasonable conditions as the Commission may think fit to impose, the requirements of any provision of Parts II and III where the Commission is of the opinion that –

- (a) the applicant or issuer, as the case may be, cannot comply with the provision or it would be unreasonable or unduly burdensome for the applicant or issuer to do so;
- (b) the provision has no relevance to the circumstances of the applicant or issuer, as the case may be; or

- (c) compliance with the provision would be detrimental to the commercial interests of the applicant or issuer, as the case may be, or to the interests of the holders of its securities.

PART IV

APPROVED SHARE REGISTRARS

12. Approval of share registrars

- (1) The Commission may approve an association of persons as an association each of whose members must be an approved share registrar for the purposes of these Rules.

- (3) The Commission must maintain a list of associations of persons approved under subsection (1).

13. Securities not to be listed where approved share registrar not employed

No application made by a corporation to a recognized exchange company for the listing of any securities issued or to be issued by that applicant may be approved by the recognized exchange company concerned unless the applicant is an approved share registrar or employs an approved share registrar.

14. Suspension of dealings on cessation of employment etc. of approved share registrar

- (1) If –
 - (a) the securities of a corporation are listed on a recognized stock market; and

- (b) the corporation ceases either to be an approved share registrar or to employ an approved share registrar;

the recognized exchange company concerned must suspend dealings in those securities unless within 3 months after the date on which the recognized exchange company first learned of such cessation or before the expiry of 21 days' notice given under subsection (2), whichever is the later, the corporation becomes an approved share registrar or employs an approved share registrar as its share registrar.

(2) Before suspending dealings in the securities of a corporation under subsection (1) the recognized exchange company concerned must give notice in writing to the corporation warning the corporation of its intention to suspend dealings in the corporation's securities unless, before the date specified in the notice, being the date on which the period of 3 months specified in subsection (1) expires or 21 days from the date of the notice, whichever is the later, the corporation becomes an approved share registrar or employs an approved share registrar as its share registrar.

(3) The Commission may require a recognized exchange company to give notice under subsection (2) to a corporation which has ceased either to be an approved share registrar or to employ an approved share registrar if, in the Commission's opinion, the recognized exchange company has failed or neglected to do so within a reasonable time, and the recognized exchange company must comply with such a requirement without delay.
